TANKLESS WATER HEATERS, THE NEXT BIG THING

SPECIAL POINTS OF INTEREST:

- The Next Big Thing in Construction Technology
- Our Newest Employee
- Custom Reports for your Company

Tankless water heaters are the next big thing according to EBuild, The Professional's Guide to Building Products. EBuild recently released its Top 100 list of Products and Materials that readers asked for information about. The number one, two, five, and six spots all went to different types of tankless water heaters. It is predicted that these products will be appearing more in new construction.

The most innovative feature of these products is that they are, well, tankless. The water heaters featured, created by Rheem, Rinnai, Takagi, and Controlled Energy Corporation, all have a more compact design than traditional water heaters. They can provide hot water, which is often temperature controlled, to two different sources at the same time without any sort of storage tank. The Rinnai Continuum Tankless Gas Water Heater even features a control pad that can be mounted anywhere in the home and set to a specific temperature that the heater will maintain.

As construction technologies change, so will GMC-CMI LLC. We are committed to maintaining a progressive edge to be able to understand and comment upon the changing face of construction.

FEATURED PRODUCT: CUSTOM REPORTS

GMC-CMI LLC is always looking for more ways to serve our customers. One of those ways is through Custom Reports. We are able to design and write a report that is specific to your business' or project's needs.

Constructability Analysis, Budget Reviews, and Progress Payment Reports are ideal ways to determine if a project is properly organized and adequately funded. For most construction projects a combination of two or all of these reports is the most effective way to ensure that the finances involved are managed appropriately.

If, however, you need specific or limited information please contact us and we will be happy to work with you to build a Custom Report.
